

Upcoming Behavior and Design Changes in Leganto 2024

Upcoming UI Changes

The following UI changes are coming in 2024. We will update with specific months once we have finalized the development plans.

Note

The final design may not be exactly as in the mock-ups provided below. Mock-ups are intended to show only the change described. Any other changes between the mock-up and the current view of Leganto are not meant to indicate additional upcoming changes.

Experience	Software	Expected Release
Separate All Lists and My Lists Search	Leganto	TBD
Move X to Close Right Pane	Leganto	No longer planned

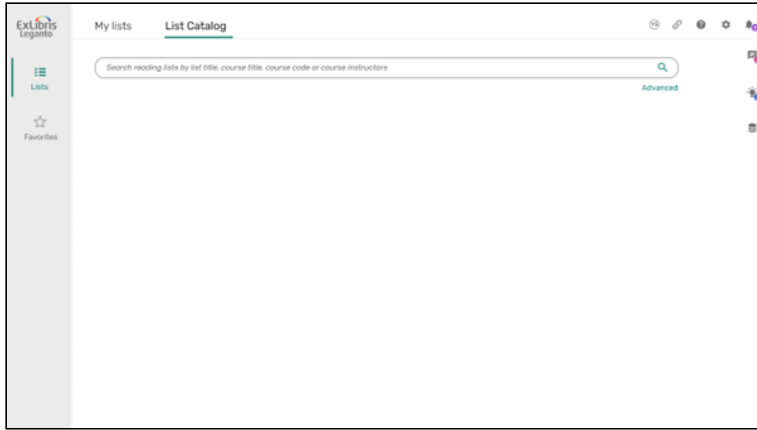

Separate All Lists and My Lists Search

We received feedback that it is difficult to toggle between My lists and All lists. We will change the drop-down menu to two separate tabs to help users see that there are multiple options for searching. It also allows to display all “My lists” by default but reset the results when switching to All lists.

Move X to Close Right Pane

We received feedback that the X to close is too small and requires too much mouse movement to access. We had planned to move the X to the left side of the right pane to make it easier to see and use, but after developing it we discovered that moving the X from the top right caused new usability issues as users generally expect to find a close button in the top-right of the screen. Therefore, we no longer plan to make this change. In the meantime, we have made all the icons larger, added additional padding to the right of the X, and added a hotkey (ESC) to close the right pane. We will also make the X a bit thicker and include the hotkey information in the out of the box label.
