

---

p_publish_06: xml files not in $data_scratch

- Article Type: General
  - Product: Aleph
  - Product Version: 18.01
-

Description:

In our continuing test of publishing, I noticed that all of the little xml files created by p_publish_06 end up in $data_scratch during processing.

Since this can be a very large number of files, might there be a way to have these placed in some other directory during processing? It makes for a bit of a mess to have these all in the same directory as other files. Anything (subdirectory, another location, etc) would be preferred to leaving what will ultimately be millions of XML files in this directory.

Resolution:

This problem was caused by submitting p_publish_06 with incorrect parameters.

---

- Article last edited: 10/8/2013