Description:

Can you advise how the Aleph GUI might be configured to open at a resized state rather than a maximized state? I can't seem to find a setting in the .ini files that might control this.

Resolution:

There is no way to configure ALEPH to automatically open in a state which is not maximized (these other states are known sometimes as "restore down", resized, resizeable, resizable or minimized). ALEPH is hard coded to open as maximized. This is because in other states all windows and buttons would not be properly viewable.
