

gtk2-engines package for Aleph 23 on Red Hat 7.x

- Product: Aleph
 - Product Version: 23
 - Relevant for Installation Type: Local

Question

We're installing Aleph 23 in a server with Red Hat 7.x, and our pre-checks informed us that the gtk2-engines package needs to be installed. However, this package is not longer supported by Red Hat, and much be downloaded from a different source. How should we proceed?

Answer

In such a case, the installation of the gtk2-engines package can be skipped. The pre-checks will be updated in the future to take this into account.
